Special Session on “International Capital Flows and Emerging Markets”

CALL FOR PAPERS

The recent financial crisis has witnessed massive global movements of financial capital and emerging market (Ems) have been at the center of these movements. Capital Flows to Ems are characterized by periods of rapid inflows followed, equally in many cases, by outflows. Papers in this session examine various aspects of EM capital flows such as the economic and/or political factors behind decisions by global investors to invest in various forms of international capital (e.g. foreign direct investment, portfolio equity investment, bonds, etc.), possible diversification benefits to foreign investors from investing in Ems, the benefits/costs of these flows to EMs and the role of sovereign credit ratings in influencing investor decisions.

Keywords: Emerging markets, Capital Inflows, Capital Outflows, International Capital Markets
